

BURNING SKIN

LA PELL QUE CREMA

BY MARCEL RIBÓ

Hugo, a 15-year-old, is trying to hold onto his place among his childhood friends, despite feeling more and more distant from them. One day, his best friend and the group's leader shows him a video involving a sexual encounter with a girl they both know. Confused, Hugo talks to his older brother about sex, trying to understand what a sexual intercourse should look like. He starts to understand that what he saw is not right and that his friend, influenced by distorted ideas of what intimate relations are, is not doing things the right way. Hugo strives to understand what is really happening, while clumsily trying to stand up to his friend.
